This Holland is not the European country but a small picturesque village located in Michigan State. Several hundred years ago, some Dutch people settled down here and build a homeland resembling their motherland. Meanwhile, they also bring the national flower of Netherland, the tulips with them here. Now, the village of Holland hosts a tulip festival every May. The festival attracts millions of visitors and was named Reader's Digest's best small town festival. During the festival, over 600 million tulips were planted all over the city. Follow our tour and we will show the best of Holland. First, we will visit the Windmill Island Gardens. As its name says, there is a huge windmill located here. It was made in Netherland 245 years ago and moved entirely to this village. Right in front the windmill, you will find acres of tulips. Feel free to appreciate all kinds of tulips and take photos with them. You can also visit all kinds of Dutch product workshops, crafts store, the Merry-go-around, and a lot more. For lunch, we will try some authentic Dutch food. Then we will visit the center of the Holland. A costumed local tour guide will show us the best architectures of Holland and tell you all the interesting stories about the city. Of course, we cannot complete our visit without going to the dunes near Michigan Lake. A dune ride with a special vehicle will leave you an exciting and unforgettable experience and show you the lost town of Singapore, local vegetation and wild life of Michigan. We will head back to Chicago in the evening.
