Locust Grove Estate, Marist College, Culinary Institute of America

Locust Grove Estate:

Overlooking the Hudson River in Poughkeepsie New York, the 200-acre Locust Grove Estate includes an Italianate villa designed in 1851 for artist and inventor Samuel Morse by architect A. J. Davis.

Inside the historic mansion, step back in time to the early years of the 20th century; the Young family's collection of Hudson River School paintings, early 19th-century American furniture, and personal possessions are still in place after more than a century.

Marist College:

Recognized for excellence by U.S. News & World Report, Time, and "The Princeton Review," and by "Barron's Best Buys in College Education," is noted for its leadership in the use of technology to enhance the teaching and learning process.

Culinary Institute of America:

The CIA is the world's premier culinary college. As a true not-for-profit college, our mission is to provide the world's best professional culinary education. Students come to the CIA for our gold-standard education programs, expert faculty, world-class campuses in the U.S. and Singapore, and outstanding career opportunities. Our programs are for anyone with a passion for food—from students striving to become the next Charlie Palmer (CIA Class of '79), Grant Achatz (CIA Class of '94), or Cat Cora (CIA Class of '95) to professionals looking to advance their skills to food lovers seeking the best in education for the home cook.
